

The soldier came knocking upon the queens door
He said, i am not fighting for you any more
The queen knew shed seen his face someplace before
And slowly she let him inside.

He said, Ive watched your palace up here on the hill
And Ive wondered whos the woman for whom we all kill
But I am leaving tomorrow and you can do what you will Only first I am asking you why.

Down in the long narrow hall he was led
Into her rooms with her tapestries red
And she never once took the crown from her head
She asked him there to sit down.

He said, i see you now, and you are so very young
But Ive seen more battles lost than I have battles won
And Ive got this intuition, says its all for your fun
And now will you tell me why?

The young queen, she fixed him with an arrogant eye
She said, you wont understand, and you may as well not try
But her face was a childs, and he thought she would cry
But she closed herself up like a fan.

And she said, Ive swallowed a secret burning thread
It cuts me inside, and often Ive bled
He laid his hand then on top of her head
And he bowed her down to the ground.

tell me how hungry are you? how weak you must feel
As you are living here alone, and you are never revealed
But I wont march again on your battlefield
And he took her to the window to see.

And the sun, it was gold, though the sky, it was gray
And she wanted more than she ever could say
But she knew how it frightened her, and she turned away
And would not look at his face again.

And he said, i want to live as an honest man
To get all I deserve and to give all I can
And to love a young woman who I dont understand
Your highness, your ways are very strange.

But the crown, it had fallen, and she thought she would break
And she stood there, ashamed of the way her heart ached
She took him to the doorstep and she asked him to wait
She would only be a moment inside.

Out in the distance her order was heard
And the soldier was killed, still waiting for her word

And while the queen went on strangeling in the solitude she preferred
The battle continued on